

Social Host Laws & Ordinances

Youth Access Alcohol at Parties

Alcohol is the most commonly used substance among youth and most underage drinkers get alcohol socially from parties and friends.

In Texas, 47.9% percent of middle and high school students report getting alcohol at parties and almost half of high school seniors (44.8%) say alcohol is most of the time or always used at parties they attend (DSHS, 2014). Among underage Texas college students, 78% obtained alcohol from a friend who was over 21, 52% obtained alcohol from a parent or relative, and 38% obtained alcohol from a friend who was also under 21 (DSHS, 2013).

Youth underage drinking parties commonly occur at homes of family or friends. The adults may be away from home, at home and unaware of the underage drinking, or, in some cases, at home and allowing the underage drinking, possibly even providing the alcohol.

Social Host Ordinances Reduce Underage Drinking

A social host is an individual who provides alcohol to minors in a home or other private property and/or is responsible for the property where underage drinking occurs.

A local social host ordinance is a local law that holds adults liable for underage drinking on their property and/or for providing alcohol to minors. Communities across the country have begun to pass such ordinances to ensure the health and safety of youth. A social host ordinance is a prevention tool designed “to stop parties where binge drinking is occurring by creating adult accountability without necessarily elevating the offense to the misdemeanor level that can carry a penalty of jail time” (An Issue Briefing: The Petaluma Social Host Ordinance).

Why the Concern for Underage Drinking Parties?

Limited or no supervision combined with heavy drinking creates an unsafe environment where problems beyond drinking and driving occur:

- Violence and assaults
- Binge drinking and alcohol poisoning
- Sexual assault
- Unwanted or unplanned sexual activity
- Combination drug use
- Property damage and vandalism

Recommended Components of a Social Host Ordinance for Texas Communities:

Civil Penalty – A financial penalty imposed by a government agency. Civil penalties are more easily enforced than criminal penalties because they require a lower burden of proof.

Cost Recovery – A cost recovery component allows police, fire departments, and other emergency services to recover the costs incurred from responding to underage drinking parties, typically after responding two or more times to the same location. This ensures that public safety departments do not shoulder the financial burden.

Due Process – Social host ordinances must allow for due process in order to ensure fairness and respect individuals’ legal rights. Citizens must be able to appeal a social hosting penalty through the legal system.

Nuisance Violation – A social host ordinance categorizes parties where underage drinking occurs as a public nuisance and supports law enforcement who routinely have to respond to calls regarding loud and/or unruly parties where underage drinking is occurring.
